Youllknow lit a candle in honor of Maurice Antonio.

Rest In Peace to this young man that was in my life for a year & some months but he and I became strangers many months ago so hearing he died didn't hit like it would if he was still in my life. But annnnyways he did have good qualities but he also did unforgivable malicious & hurtful things to myself as well as my family when they allowed him to live with us; meeting him and welcoming him that day no questions asked. He took advantage in many ways. That is what makes me angry still to this day, he hurt my family especially since he always expressed he felt as if he didn't have a family of his own that supported him. So yeeaaah please excuse me if I'm being disrespectful but this kid messed me and my life up while he was in it.... So I cut him out of it. Within weeks, my life improved so I felt confident I did the right thing for ME when I moved on from him. But now he's dead, from a heroin overdose on what street??? gasppp New St in Dover Away from where his family and friends are in down state Delaware... He made the decision to come to Dover on his own to get high - and this is why I don't feel bad - I was blamed for his addiction while we were together and was made the bad influence and once he's away from me he'll get his life together blah blah blah! So you see, I feel vindicated for all the mean words said about me by his family... Especially his horrible mother SMH. Anywaaayys bye Reese I never got to express myself so now the truth is out to be seen. RIP 🙏
